MICHIGAN WORLD LANGUAGE STANDARDS AND BENCHMARKS

Introduction

The Michigan World Language Standards and Benchmarks define what students should know and be able to do to communicate effectively in a language other than English. These standards and benchmarks outline three levels of proficiency: a level that meets the Michigan Merit Curriculum requirements and two additional levels that describe the knowledge and skills attained by students who complete an extended program of study.

Specifically, the standards and benchmarks describe:

- 1) the communicative functions, or tasks, that students should be able to carry out in that language,
- 2) the contexts, or situations, in which students can understand and use written, spoken and/or signed language to carry out these tasks, and
- 3) the level of accuracy and appropriateness of the language students use.

This three part functions-contexts-accuracy model can be used to describe language proficiency at a variety of levels, from the very basic, like greeting and asking how someone is, to the highly sophisticated, like supporting and defending an opinion or negotiating a business transaction.

There are many ways for language learners to develop and enhance their language proficiency. However, all of these paths to language proficiency have five essential elements in common. All proficiency-oriented opportunities to learn a world language emphasize:

- meaningful spoken, written and/or signed communication
- the fundamental link between language and the culture or cultures in which the language is used
- the role of interdisciplinary content connections
- the need for opportunities to compare languages and cultures
- frequent opportunities to learn and use language within the context of an authentic, living language community

These five essential elements are at the heart of the national Standards for Foreign Language Learning in the 21st Century (National Standards in Foreign Language Education Project, 2006).

Vision

Michigan students, like students throughout the United States, are living in and contributing to an increasingly diverse society and interdependent community of nations in the 21st century. To realize their personal, social, and long-term career goals, individuals need to be able to communicate with others skillfully, appropriately, and effectively. The challenge of contemporary education is to prepare all students for life in this new world. Because language and communication are at the heart of the human experience, the United States must equip students linguistically and culturally to communicate successfully in a pluralistic American society and abroad. This imperative envisions a future in which all students develop and maintain proficiency in English and in at least one other language.

Context for the World Language Standards and Benchmarks

The Michigan World Language Standards and Benchmarks were informed by the generic and language-specific Standards for Foreign Language Learning in the 21st Century (National Standards in Foreign Language Education Project, 2006), American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) Performance Guidelines for K-12 Learners, ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines: Speaking (1999 revision), ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines: Writing (2001 revision), documents developed by other professional language associations, available College Board Advanced Placement courses and exams, and related world language standards documents from other states. In particular, the Michigan World Language Standards and Benchmarks reflect the structure of the national Standards including the Statement of Philosophy and the framework of Communicative Modes and Learning Scenarios. These documents share a common theoretical and research foundation that emphasizes:

- language as communication
- language learning through meaningful and significant use
- cultural, social, and cognitive processes in language and academic development
- assessments that reflect the social, cultural and communicative nature of language.

General Principles of Language Acquisition

Current linguistic, psychological and educational research offers insight into the process of learning additional languages and the pedagogy that supports language learning. Even though language learning takes place in the community as well as in classrooms, in the school setting, several general principles are fundamental to successful language teaching and learning for all students:

- Language is functional.

The development of listening, speaking, reading, writing, or signing skills is essential for students to function in social as well as academic situations.

- Language skills develop interdependently.

The acquisition of interpersonal, interpretive, and presentational language proficiency, or receptive and expressive signed (American Sign Language) proficiency, occurs simultaneously and interdependently as students learn and use language in a variety of contexts. For example, in interpersonal oral communication, students are required to both listen and speak. Similarly, in interpersonal signed communication, students must operate in both the receptive and expressive modes.

- Language learning is cultural learning.

Language is the primary vehicle for expressing cultural perspectives and participating in social practices. Thus, the study of a new language provides opportunities for students to develop cultural insights that are available in no other way. Since people who share the same native language share many common values, beliefs, and behaviors, language and culture are truly inseparable. It is also important to recognize that members of one culture tend to make assumptions and draw corresponding conclusions about other cultures based upon their own values. Through language study, learners come to understand, respect, and value the practices, products, and perspectives that are at the heart of cultures other than their own. To accomplish this, teachers must integrate language and culture within each daily lesson and compel students to make cultural comparisons and connections.

- Language proficiency develops through meaningful use and interaction.

World language learners must have multiple opportunities to learn and use authentic language, to interact with others as they study meaningful and intellectually challenging content, and to receive feedback on their language use. This means that teachers and students should use the target language exclusively as the means of communication within and beyond the classroom. To do this, teachers must both have a high level of language proficiency and must be able to tailor their language to the level of their learners.

- Language acquisition is a long-term process and occurs at different rates.

Language acquisition occurs over time with learners moving through developmental stages and gradually growing in proficiency. Teachers, parents and students must recognize that language learning takes time and that learners acquire language and develop proficiency at different rates.

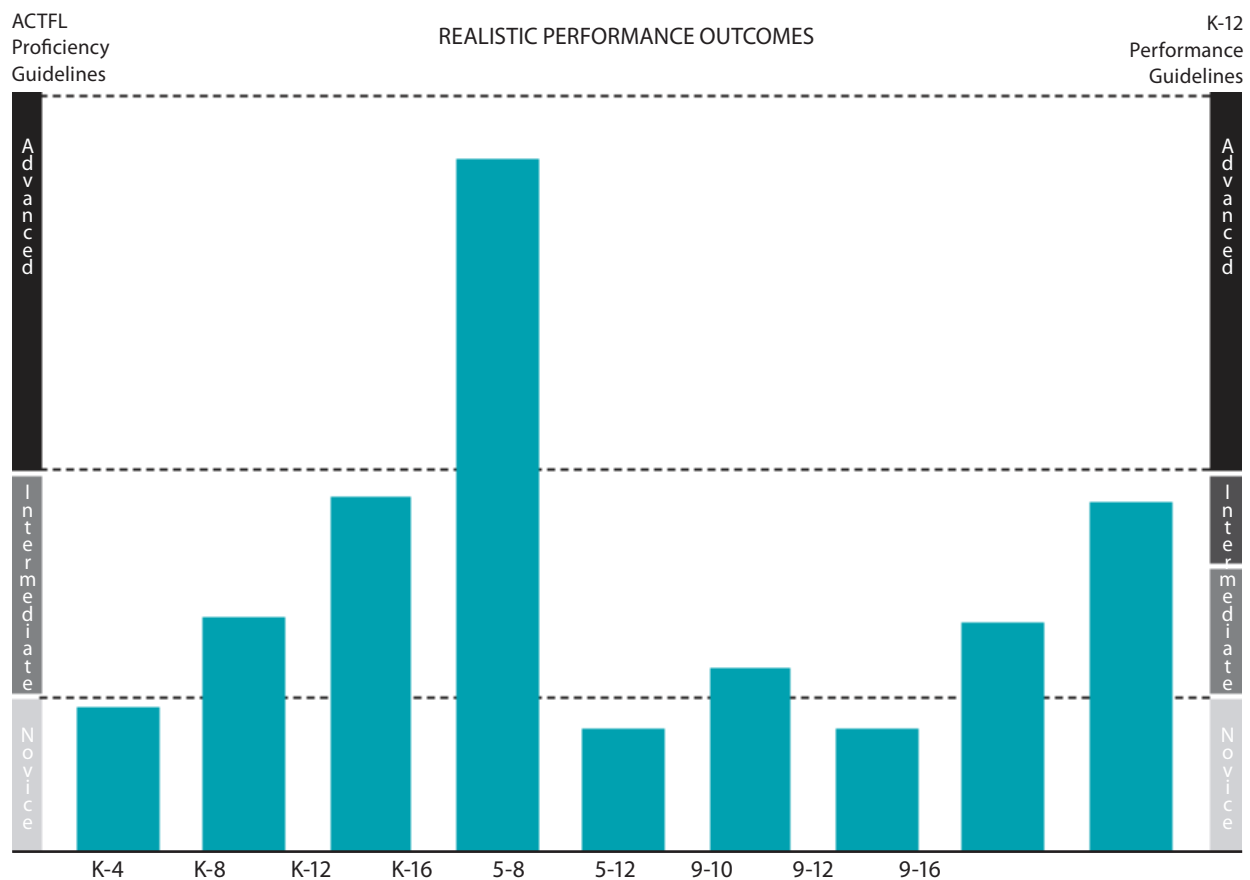

- Language proficiency develops in varied ways.

A variety of factors influence students' acquisition of another language. These factors include students' proficiency in their first/home language, their learning and cognitive styles, motivation for language learning, personality, personal interests, and previous language learning experiences. To help all students succeed in the language classroom, teachers must take these differences into consideration and use a variety of strategies, techniques and materials when teaching and assessing student learning.

Expected Proficiency Levels

The Proficiency Guidelines of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages (ACTFL) describe language proficiency in terms of five levels: Novice, Intermediate, Advanced, Superior and Distinguished. At the Novice, Intermediate, and Advanced levels, proficiency is further defined as low, mid, or high. As outlined in the following chart, ACTFL suggests that students who study the same language from Kindergarten through Grade 12 can reach the levels of Pre-advanced or Advanced Low.

As shown in the preceding figure, from the ACTFL Performance Guidelines for K-12 Learners (1999), students' proficiency in Grade 12 is directly related to the amount of sustained instruction that they have in the language. For example, students who have daily and sustained opportunities to learn and use a world language in Grades K – 4 can reach the level of Novice Mid. Similarly, students who have daily, sustained and continuous opportunities to learn and use a world language in Grades K –12 may reach the level of Intermediate Mid to Intermediate High. Students who study the same world language beginning in Kindergarten and continue with that language in an uninterrupted sequence of study throughout their college years, will have a strong and sophisticated command of the language. Note that the preceding figure illustrates expected levels of performance for students who have access to different opportunities to learn and use a language; these levels of performance are fully consistent with the expected outcomes for the various scheduling models presented in the Michigan Languages Other Than English Guidelines.

Proficiency Levels for K-12 Learners in Michigan

As students' proficiency increases from the Novice through the Intermediate and into the Pre-Advanced level, they are able to carry out more detailed, sophisticated and varied tasks in increasingly wide-ranging and complicated situations with greater flexibility, complexity, and accuracy. The following table illustrates both content and performance standards, i.e., what students know, are able to do, and how well they can do it, at each level of proficiency (Novice High, Intermediate Low – Intermediate Mid, and Pre-Advanced).

Considerations:

1. The proficiency levels described in the table below do not correspond directly to what are often called "Level I," Level II, or Level III" language courses offered in a middle school or high school setting.
2. To demonstrate proficiency of all of the benchmarks, students need extended sequences of study beyond the two-credit minimum requirement.
3. Benchmarks beyond the Novice High level are provided to guide districts in developing curriculum for extended sequences of study beyond the two-credit minimum requirement

Description of Proficiency Levels for K-12 Learners in Michigan
	Novice High (Students have met the minimum two-credit graduation requirement.)	Intermediate Low and Intermediate Mid (Students can meet all expectations at the Novice High level and the following.)	Pre-Advanced (Students can meet all expectations at the Intermediate Low and Intermediate Mid levels and the following.)
Functions	Effectively carry out everyday social and survival tasks that present no complications	Effectively carry out everyday social and survival tasks that may present complications	Effectively carry out tasks that present complications and require negotiation of meaning
Contexts	Effectively communicate about familiar topics related to self, home, family, friends, neighborhood, school, community, professions, and environment	Effectively communicate about topics beyond self and home; developing ability to communicate about topics related to work, current events, and issues of personal and public interest	Effectively communicate about topics related to work, current, public, and personal interest; developing the ability to communicate about unfamiliar topics
Time Frames	Communicate about present and future events; reports series of isolated events in the past	Communicate consistently about present and future events; communicates inconsistently about past events	Can generally narrate and describe in past, present, and future time
Levels of Discourse	Communicate in sentence-length discourse recombining and reformulating learned phrases	Communicate in sentences and short paragraphs	Communicate in connected, paragraph length discourse
Comprehensibility and Accuracy	Are understood primarily by native speakers who are very accustomed to interacting with language learners	Are consistently understood by native speakers accustomed to interacting with language learners	Are understood by native speakers who are unaccustomed to interacting with language learners
Comprehension and Accuracy	Can identify the text type, topic, and some significant details of an authentic presentational or interpersonal oral, written, or signed text	Can identify the text type, topic, main ideas and some significant details of an authentic presentational or interpersonal oral, written, or signed text	Can identify and analyze the text type, topic, main ideas, details and other features of an authentic presentational or interpersonal oral, written, or signed text

Contexts

As learners increase in proficiency, they are able to function in increasingly varied, wide-ranging, and complicated situations. It is important to note, however, that the range of contexts in which Novice High and Intermediate Low–Mid students is quite similar. For example, students at both the Novice High and the Intermediate Low–Mid levels can successfully carry out everyday social and survival tasks such as purchasing an item of clothing. Unlike the Novice High learner, however, Intermediate Low–Mid learner can describe the item to be purchased in greater detail and communicate successfully when the situation involves a complication. The Intermediate High–Advanced Low learner can address all of those same topics as well as more sophisticated and abstract topics that go beyond everyday social and survival situations.

The table below outlines the contexts in which students should be able to comfortably understand and use the world language at the Novice High (N), Intermediate Low–Intermediate Mid (M), and Intermediate High–

Overview to the Michigan World Languages Standards and Benchmarks

The Michigan World Language Standards and Benchmarks are correlated with the National Standards for Foreign Language Learning and are organized around the 5Cs: communication, cultures, connections, comparisons, and communities. Local school districts are encouraged to use these standards and benchmarks in developing an articulated K-12 world language program that meets the needs of all learners.

The Standards and Benchmarks are coded as follows:

Example:	1.1.N.SL.a
First number indicates:	Strand (Communication, Culture, Connection, Comparisons, Communities)
Second number indicates:	Standard
Upper-case letter indicates:	Level of proficiency
	N = Novice High
	M = Intermediate Low – Mid
	A = Pre-Advanced
Second Upper-case letter indicates:	Domain in Communication Strand or Topic within Culture Strand
Communication Domain:	SL Speaking/Listening
	RW Reading/Writing
	L Listening
	R Reading
	S Speaking
	W Writing
Culture Topics:	H Historic Events and Governmental Systems
	F Family and Community
	E Education, Employment, and Economy
	G Geography and Natural Resources
	C Cultural and Creative Heritage
Lower case letter indicates:	Benchmark within the standard describing what students should know and be able to do at a particular level of proficiency.

The Michigan Standards and Benchmarks for World Language Proficiency for K-12 Schools are meant to be used by instructors of World Languages other than English. Because these standards are not language specific, some standards and benchmarks may not be applicable to all languages. Therefore, certain languages are exempt from proficiency in all four skills as described below.

Language Options

While most languages taught in Michigan schools require students to build proficiency in listening, speaking, reading and writing, some languages do not have a written or oral form. Students may fulfill the requirement in the following ways:

- For languages that are both written and spoken, students must demonstrate proficiency at the Novice High level in speaking and writing (productive skills) and in listening and reading (interpretive skills). (See ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines for Speaking and for Writing for definition).
- For languages that are no longer spoken (i.e. Ancient Greek or Latin), students are required to demonstrate proficiency at the Novice High level in writing (productive skill) and in reading (interpretive skill). (See ACTFL Proficiency Guidelines for Speaking and for Writing for definition).
- For languages without formally accepted writing systems (i.e., Anishinaabe), students are required to demonstrate listening and speaking proficiency at the Novice High level in speaking
- For languages that are signed (i.e. American Sign Language), students are required to demonstrate receptive and expressive proficiency equivalent to the Novice High level for languages that are spoken and written. (Reference ASL document).

Michigan World Language Standards
1 Communication		Communicate in Languages Other Than English
	1.1	Interpersonal Communication: Students engage in conversations, provide and obtain information, express feelings and emotions, and exchange opinions.
	1.2	Interpretive Communication: Students understand and interpret written and spoken language on a variety of topics.
	1.3	Presentational Communication: Students present information, concepts, and ideas to an audience of listeners or readers on a variety of topics.
2 Cultures		Gain Knowledge and Understanding of Other Cultures
	2.1	Practices and Perspectives: Students demonstrate an understanding of the relationship between the practices and perspectives of the culture studied.
	2.2	Products and Perspectives: Students demonstrate an understanding of the relationship between the products and perspectives of the culture studied.
3 Connections		Connect with other Disciplines and Acquire Information
	3.1	Knowledge: Students reinforce and further their knowledge of other disciplines through the world language.
	3.2	Point of View: Students acquire information and recognize the distinctive viewpoints that are only available through the world language and its cultures.
4 Comparisons		Develop Insight into the Nature of Language and Culture
	4.1	Comparing Languages: Students demonstrate understanding of the nature of language through comparisons of the language studied and their own.
	4.2	Comparing Cultures: Students demonstrate understanding of the concept of culture through comparisons of the cultures studied and their own.
5 Communities		Participate in Multilingual Communities at Home and Around the World
	5.1	Use of Language: Students use the language both within and beyond the school setting.
	5.2	Personal Enrichment: Students show evidence of becoming life-long learners by using the language for personal enjoyment and enrichment.
